Packet Use and Benefits

Major, Minor, Attitude & Bully Packets

John has been disrespectful again, that's twice this week. You have warned him once and now you have no choice but to have him complete the behavior packet on disrespect. While the class is working independently, give John the Disrespectful Behavior Packet which has been photocopied from the Minor Problems Notebook or printed from the CD. Tell John to work the packet and turn it in at the end of class. It will take him about 25 minutes to complete. You can reinforce what John has learned from the packet by having him report to you before or after school to review his work. Or you can have John complete the packet after school as a detention or as homework with a parent's signature required.

Program Benefits

1. All students will face the same consequences for the same offenses.
2. Students will no longer associate wasting time or doing homework with being disciplined.
3. Discipline will be fair, consistent and related to the misbehavior.
4. Packets provide talking points to conference with the wrongdoer about his actions.
5. Lessons reinforce reading and writing skills.
6. Completed packets provide needed documentation.

Student Motivation Packets on CD

Teachers often feel overwhelmed when faced with students who are unmotivated to learn. The task can become less difficult when it is realized that student motivation can be boosted by having students work Motivation Packets that focus on what it is that keeps them from achieving to their abilities.

Motivation Packets are administered in the same way as behavior improvement packets: by matching a student's problem to a packet topic.

For example, if you have a student who has difficulty accepting criticism, assign the Constructive Criticism Packet. Student can complete a Motivation Packet during class, before or after school, as a homework assignment or in conjunction with one of the discipline packets.

Each packet has approximately seven pages of reading material and three pages of questions. Packet lessons culminate with goal-setting exercises, leading the way for future actions. The program consists of over 200 pages of material. Reading level is approximately 6.0.

Program Benefits

1. Lessons reinforce school expectations.
2. Packets prompt students to make positive changes.
3. Students understand the consequences of poor decision making.
