How Classroom Discipline & Bully Packets Work

John has been disrespectful again, that's twice this week. You have warned him once and now you have no choice but to have him complete the behavior packet on disrespect. While the class is working independently, give John the Disrespectful Behavior Packet which has been printed from your computer. Tell John to work the packet and turn it in at the end of class. It will take him about 25 minutes to complete. You can reinforce what John has learned in the packet by having him report to you before or after school to review his work. Or you can have John complete the packet after school as a detention or as homework with a parent signature required. For some bully behaviors you may want to work with your school administrator as you assign packets since more serious misbehavior may result in school suspensions.

Classroom Discipline & Bully Packet Program Benefits

1. All students will face the same consequences for the same offenses.
2. Students will no longer associate wasting time or doing homework with being disciplined.
3. Discipline will be fair, consistent and related to the classroom misbehavior.
4. Packets provide talking points to conference with the wrongdoer about his actions.
5. Lessons reinforce reading and writing skills.
6. Packets backup a teacher's best preventative actions.

Student Motivation Packets On CD ROM

Teachers often feel overwhelmed when faced with students who are unmotivated. The task can become less difficult when it is realized that student motivation can be improved by having students work Motivation Packets that focus on what it is that keeps them from achieving to their abilities.

Motivation Packets are administered in the same way as behavior improvement packets: by matching a student's problem to a packet topic. For example, if you have a student who has difficulty accepting constructive criticism, have him or her work the packet, Constructive Criticism: using constructive criticism effectively. Students can complete a Motivation Packet during class, before or after school, as a homework assignment or in conjunction with one of the discipline packets.

Each packet has approximately seven pages of reading material and three pages of questions. Packet lessons culminate with goal-setting exercises, leading the way for improved future actions. The program consists of over 200 pages of material.
